Accessing the City's Business Network

Many of the council and committee rooms were configured with wireless access points to enable councillors and staff to connect laptops to the City's business network to gain access to information during the course of the meetings.

Access to the City's business network is granted through the use of a security key fob issued by the I&T Division. The same user based policies for security and acceptable use apply for wireless access as it does for fixed network computers. Access to the City's network is achieved by logging into the network through the use of the internet browser using your city username and a process known as two factor authentication.

Two factor authentication is a combination of something you know such as a word added to a number sequence generated by the security key fob. Both factors must be combined together and entered while the generated number is still shown on the key fob. Failure to do so during the allotted timeframe will require the user to re-enter the sequence with the new generated number shown on the key fob.

Once access is granted, secure computer resources allocated to the user such as email, date file storage, or business application(s) will appear. Access to these applications requires the same username/password authorization you would use at your desk.

To assist Councillors and staff to understand where secured wireless services are available, the following table below indicates the City facilities where wireless access points have been implemented for business purposes.
